SUMMARY

PAIGE PENBERTHY is a hardworking 3rd year design student from St. Louis pursuing a degree in interior design at the University of Arkansas. Paige chose to become an interior designer because she has always believed that creating dynamic and comfortable spaces for people to live their lives in can have a major effect on how one experiences the world around them. Interested in exhibition and residential design, Paige feels that it is important to connect with people on a personal level about what design might mean to them and is planning on pursuing a design internship during the summer of 2021, and continuing her education abroad during the fall.
